

I was volunteering at Kulturhaus Brotfabrik, a part of Caritas, one of the biggest NGOs in Austria.

My project was amazing, I really enjoyed every day that I spent in the office. Unfortunately, because of the coronavirus many cultural activities were closed and I couldn't come to the Kulturhaus as often as I'd like to. However, even during the short time that I've spent there, I learned a lot and enjoyed being there. I especially admire the team of the Kulturhaus: they are very friendly, helpful and open-minded.

My tasks were to assist different events, to help with project implementation and evaluation. There was both work with people and with documents, there were tasks with handiwork.

Once special moment was when we finished creating the first lighting figure. That was an amazing result of collective work.

I've learned how nice the office work can be and how a healthy and inspiring work atmosphere should look like ;)

Tips for the next volunteers: try different things during your project, visit as many events as you can, and don't bring an umbrella to Vienna, because it is too windy there :)
