STEPHANSPLATZ 📍

Take this time to learn, meet new people, embrace the new culture you are living in and of course, know yourself.

Volunteering is a good opportunity not only for making friends, but also chance to test yourself and get to know you better

TAKE IT EASY

Moving abroad could be sometimes a bit overwhelming. New country, new atmosphere, new peers... Although sometimes you think you are alone, you are surrounded by people that support you. Do not hesitate to ask for help.

ENJOY

Perhaps it sounds a bit cliché, but enjoy. Keep in mind that you are a volunteer and you are totally dispensable in your project. If you feel overwhelmed any time at work, contact your organisation(s). Also, take advantage of living in the center of Europe. Travel, travel, travel. Cheap flights would be your best ally (specially in winter)

GERMAN... WHAT A LANGUAGE!

Afterwork beer in Maria-Theresien-Platz

If you are not a German native speaker, or did not have relation with the language, welcome to this funny journey. It could be difficult but not impossible, try to speak as much as possible and take some language courses for the basics (Advice: 4/5 months after starting your volunteering is the perfect time to take the course)

“ THE MOST IMPORTANT THING IS NOT ONLY THE PROJECT, BUT WHAT HAPPENS DURING THE VOLUNTEERING! ”
